Chapter Four: Activity One

Supplies: 30 craft sticks coded to identify "voters;" permanent markers in pink, blue and black; cup or basket

Directions: These statistics are based on 2006 projections of the Texas population from the U.S. Census Bureau. Teachers may want to update using the latest data.

Label half the sticks with a pink F for female and half with a blue M for male. Using the black marker (on the same sticks), label four sticks with a B for black, one stick with A for Asian, eleven sticks with H for Hispanic and fourteen sticks with W for white. Mix the sticks up and select 15 at random; print a black X on these sticks (the X indicates nonvoters).

Distribute sticks by letting students draw them out of a cup or basket. Explain that the sticks are marked to divide the class into groups representative of the population. Explain what the marks mean so students understand which group they represent. Call out each race and gender, having those students stand up to show what percentage that group represents in the whole state of Texas.

Now have all students stand as you read the following:

"In the early years of our country's history, only white men could vote. (Have women and minorities sit down.)

"In 1870, the 15th Amendment to the Constitution gave men of all races the right to vote." (Have minority men stand.) "But in some states, there were literacy requirements, poll taxes and intimidation that still kept minorities from voting." (Have minority men sit.)

"In 1874, it was argued before the Supreme Court that the 14th Amendment granted women the right to vote." (Have women stand.) "But the Supreme Court decided that it was not unconstitutional for states to deny women the vote." (Have women sit.)

"In 1920, with the passage of the 15th Amendment to the Constitution, women finally were granted the right to vote." (Women stand up.)

"In 1965, the Civil Rights Act declared that no state could deny minorities the right to vote for any reason." (Have all minorities stand up.)

"Today, almost all adults (over the age of 18) have the right to vote in the United States. But how many people actually do vote? To vote, you must first register. In 2000, 76 percent of the voting age population was registered. And only 67.5 percent of the people who were registered actually voted, or about 51 percent of the whole population." (Have half the students sit down.)

"Now let's look at who those voters were in the 2000 election." (Have everyone sit down. As you direct various groups to stand, have them come forward and form a line facing the class.) "Eighty percent of them were white." (Have eleven students with "W" on their sticks stand in a line.) "Nine percent of them were Hispanic." (Have one person with "H" join the line.) "Twelve percent of voters were African American." (Have 1 ½ students with "B" join the line—one standing and one kneeling.) Three percent of voters were Asian." (Have one student with "A" join the line, kneeling.)

"First look at the percentage of the total population that actually voted in 2000. Then look at the percentage of each group that voted."

Have students discuss their feelings about the activity. Do they feel their ethnic group would receive adequate representation? Have them discuss why they think so few registered voters actually vote. What could be done to improve voter turn-out? What will they do when they are eligible to vote?

Chapter Four: Activity Two

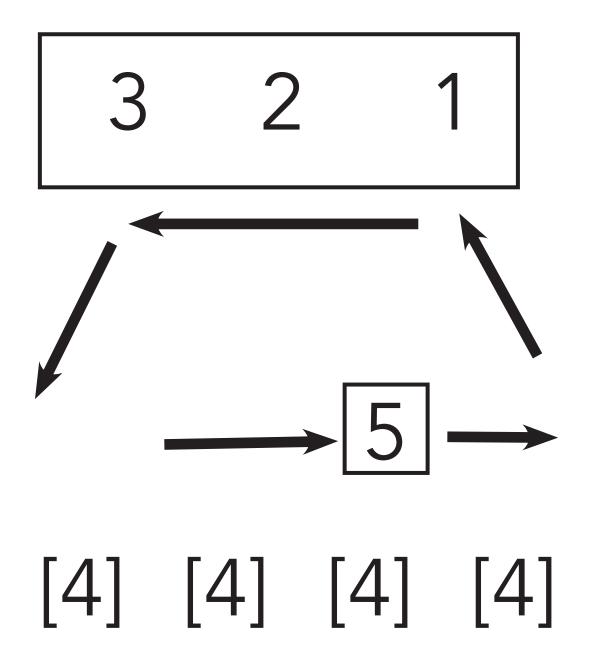

Supplies: Ballot box and voting booth, sample ballots, voter registration cards

Directions: Hold a mock election to introduce some fun into the learning experience and reinforce the lesson. The procedure is as follows:

- 1. Appoint an election judge and clerks.
- 2. Borrow a ballot box and voting booth from the county clerk or elections administrator. Or, construct your own.
- 3. Secure enough sample ballots for all members of the class to vote, or appoint a committee to prepare a class ballot.
- 4. Get voter registration cards from the county clerk or print them off from www.sos.state.tx.us/elections/forms/vr17.pdf and let all students practice filling them out and then turning them in to the election judge.
- 5. Set up the room according to the diagram. The election judge and clerks are responsible for organizing the polling place, conducting the election, and certifying the votes.

Steps in the voting process:

- 1. The voter enters and presents his or her voter registration certificate to the election judge.
- 2. The voter moves down to the election clerk and signs the signature roster. The clerk enters the voter's name on poll list.
- 3. The voter receives a ballot.
- 4. The voter enters the polling booth and marks his or her ballot.
- 5. The voter folds the ballot and inserts it in the ballot box.
- 6. The voter departs the polling place.
- 7. After everyone has voted, the election clerks count the votes.

Voter enters door at right and follows path indicated by arrows.

- 1-Election Judge
- 2-Clerk
- 3-Clerk
- 4-Voting Booths
- 5-Ballot Box

Chapter Four: Activity three

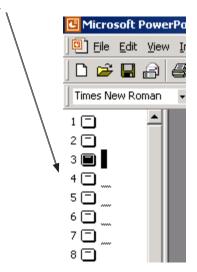

Directions for creating a Jeopardy game:

Go to http://teach.fcps.net/trt10/PowerPoint.htm.

Open the 25 Q&A Jeopardy Template.

Before you begin, save the template with a different name so that you don't replace the template with your new game. To do this, click FILE and then SAVE AS (not save) and rename it from jeopardy template 25.ppt to whatever the topic of this game is.

Click on Slide #4 on the left side of the window.

You will then see the board with the categories and choices.

Click once on the words "Category A."

When you see the text box appear you can highlight that text and type in your replacement.

Do this for each of the category headings.

Then click on Slide #5 and, in the same manner as above, replace that text with the answer that you want to be the 10-point answer for the first category. (Remember, this is jeopardy, so you give the students the answer and have them give the question.)

Listed below are the slide numbers as they match up to the categories so that you can match the answers and questions on the appropriate slides.

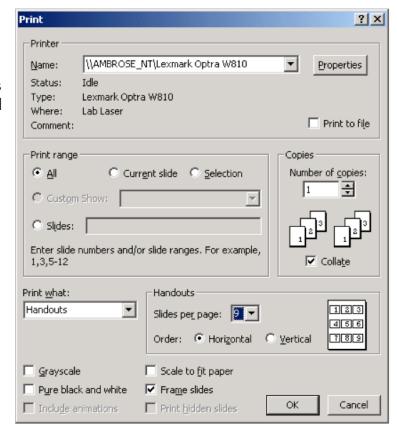

Category	Number of Points	Answer Slide #	Question Slide #

Be sure to save what you have done. (Since you've already saved it when you began, this time you can just hit the save button on the toolbar.)

Then go back and play the game yourself (by clicking on "View Show" in the "Slide Show" menu) to make sure that the correct answers and questions are together. Note: When running the game, to go from the answer slide to the question slide or back to the game board, click somewhere in the blue border of the slide.

Print out a master copy for you to use as the students are playing the game. An easy way to do this is to select FILE and PRINT. Then when you see this window, at the bottom select Handouts and 9 slides per page. This way you will not be printing 56 slides on individual sheets.

Chapter Four: Activity Four

Supplies: county position cards, index cards, glue, tag board or construction paper, markers or crayons, pens or pencils, bag or basket

Directions: Cut apart the position cards and glue each one to an index card. Review the county positions with the students. Have students divide positions into elected and appointed positions. Put appointed position cards aside and place elected position cards in a bag or basket. Ask students if they have seen or heard advertisements for candidates running for local offices. Ask students to describe what the advertisements are trying to accomplish. Ask students to describe how they would decide who to vote for. What would they want to know about a candidate in order to vote for him or her?

Divide the students into small groups. Explain that each group will design a campaign for a candidate running for office. Each group should design a campaign poster and write a 2-minute speech to convince voters to vote for that candidate. Let each group draw for a position. Give the groups a specified amount of time to work on the project. Each group should choose a spokesperson to read the speech. After each group has presented its poster and speech, let the whole group discuss the positive points of each presentation.

Students may use the following rubric to grade their participation.
